

United portfolio meets digital services

Kampf Schneid- und Wickeltechnik and Atlas Converting present themselves at the international plastics trade fair together with other companies of the Jagenberg Group. The focus of the presentation - in addition to offering the new digital services - will be the joint portfolio of Kampf and Atlas Converting, headquartered in Bedford, UK. The two exhibits on the stand take this theme into account: visitors can look forward to two modern slitting machines in the new design. Both the Kampf ConSlitter and the Atlas TitanSlitter offer maximum productivity and flexibility by extensive option catalogues. The ConSlitter comes with modern turret technology and automation to reduce downtimes and increase production output. It is particularly suitable for processing ever smaller batch sizes. The Atlas TitanSlitter - also a turret slitter - is characterised by an even more compact design. Atlas and Kampf have been working together intensively since the end of 2020. A two-brand strategy jointly opens up further market segments for both companies.

The Atlas/Kampf trade fair team is also showing the latest developments in the field of primary slitting and winding machines in Düsseldorf. Atlas offers stand visitors an insight into the features of the newly developed ProSlitter BlackLine in a new design with features that optimally enable the processing of BOPP, the increasingly important BOPE, and other materials. The new PrimeSlitter BlackLine from the Kampf developers will not only delight BOPETproducers. A stationary machine for maximum flexibility with a high degree of automation, which - already equipped with the@vanced - offers digital services.

Kampf has been paying special attention to the topic of digitalisation for years and has set up new specialist departments and interdisciplinary teams at an early stage. At K'2022, the Digital Customer Solutions team will personally answer visitors' questions on new digital service solutions: on the possibilities of the integrative platform the@vanced and, last but not least, on the benefits of the new customer portal my@advanced. In the meantime, Kampf and Atlas offer seven service branches worldwide in the joint service and a considerably enlarged service team, which is constantly enriching its knowledge and experience in service. Thus, 24/7 service is not only an advertising message, but actually a promise of investment security to customers worldwide.

The activities around "Circular Economy" give an important headline to the trade fair topics of Kampf Schneid- und Wickeltechnik with Jagenberg and its sister companies:

The goal of shaping the technological future together with customers and partners in a resource-saving manner is brought into view by the inspiring exchange at K 2022 in Düsseldorf.